

2004 INDEX

---

Assessment

Using Log File Analysis as an Instructional Design Tool

January, page 1

Professor Forgoes Exams, Uses Variety of Assessments

March, page 4

Defining and Evaluating E-Learning

April, page 5

Student Facilitation, Self-Assessment Can Improve Threaded Discussions

May page 1

Assessing a High-Enrollment Online Course

June, page 6

Finding the Right Assessment Strategies

July, page 3

Self-Assessment Techniques Help Students Become Self-Directed Learners

November, page 3

Chat

Comparing Synchronous and Asynchronous Communication

July, page 1

Building a Learning Community Throughout a Program

August, page 3

Comparing Online Peer Interaction Methods

October, page 1

Teaching People Skills Online

December, page 6

Copyright

Understanding the TEACH Act

— Judy Dahl

March, page 7

Course design

Online Identity: Implications for Course Design

January, page 6

Completing the Picture: The Development of Online Activities and Involvement Opportunities

— Jody I. Conway, Ph.D. and Barry C.

Hubbard, M.Ed.

February, page 7

Using the Internet to Facilitate Discovery Learning

February, page 4

Student Satisfaction Depends on Course Structure

February, page 1

Teaching Constructivism Via Compressed Interactive Video

March, page 6

At-Home Chemistry Labs Provide Hands-on Learning for Online Students

March, page 5

Course Mapping Streamlines Course Development Process

March, page 3

Fostering Student Collaboration and Fun in a Virtual Learning Environment: 'Hogan's Helpful Hints'

— Kerry F. Hogan

April, page 3

Varied Online Learning Opportunities Improves Student Interaction, Interest

April, page 2

Structuring Online Courses to Engage, Guide Students

May, page 6

Cross-Cultural Web-Enhanced Course Helps Internationalize Business Curriculum

June, page 3

Videogames: A Useful Teaching Model

August, page 7

---

Building a Learning Community Throughout a Program

August, page 3

Lessons Learned From Teaching Public Speaking Online

— Trudy L. Hanson, Ed.D. and Jason J. Teven, Ed.D.

August, page 1

Technology Should Not be an Obstacle to Learning

September, page 4

Online Foreign Language Instruction

September, page 5

Teaching Hands-on IT Courses at a Distance

September, page 6

Using the Debate as a Teaching Tool in the Online Classroom

— Kam Jugdev, Ph.D., Carrie Markowsky, BComm, and Thomas Mengel, Ph.D., PMP

October, page 4

Making the Most of Text-Based Instruction

October, page 6

Teaching People Skills Online

December, page 6

Course management

Reducing the Online Instructor's Administrative Burden

April, page 4

Aligning Students' Expectations With Realities of Online Learning

August, page 4

Using 'Knowbots' for Course Support

September, page 3

Course quality

Which Instructor Variables Affect Course Quality?

August, page 6

Online Guest Lectures

September, page 1

How Faculty Opinions of OLEs Affect Course Quality

October, page 2

Diversity

Toward Accommodating Learning Diversity in Online Education

— Yanyan Yong, Ph.D and Anne Parrella, Ph.D.
June, page 4

Hybrid courses

Hybrid Science Labs: Flexible and Hands-on

February, page 6

Questioning the Hybrid Model

May, page 4

Instructor collaboration

Online Team Teaching Enriches Instruction, Instructors

November, page 6

Linking Online Courses for Interdisciplinary Learning

November, page 7

Instructor roles

Support Team Eases Faculty Transition to Distance Ed

January, page 2

Instructor's 'Restrained Participation' in Threaded Discussions Gives Students Control, Ownership of Learning

October, page 8

The Changing Role of the Online Learning Advocate

December, page 2

Learning outcomes

Defining and Evaluating E-Learning

April, page 5

Study: Web-Based Instruction Can Surpass F2F Courses in Critical Thinking

September, page 8

Multimedia

Multimedia Helps Online Courses Simulate Face-to-Face Interactivity

May, page 5

Student and Faculty Views on Streaming Video

May, page 3

---

---

Personalizing the Online Classroom Using Tech-Smith's Camtasia or Microsoft's Windows Media Encoder

— Steven R. Mark, Ph.D.
July, page 4

Using Multimedia to Trigger Threaded Discussions
November, page 1

Obstacles to Using Learning Objects
December, page 3

Student collaboration

A Model for Effective Collaboration
January, page 5

Using Group Work to Promote Community, Sharing Expertise
March, page 1

Online Process-Oriented Group Projects
April, page 1

Let Students Choose How to Collaborate
July, page 7

Developing Community Online
— Patricia A. Smith, Ed.D
August, page 2

Comparing Online Peer Interaction Methods
October, page 1

Student persistence

Online Student Retention Requires a Proactive Approach
February, page 3

The Connection Between Instructional Interaction and Student Persistence
June, page 7

Student satisfaction

Student Satisfaction Depends on Course Structure
February, page 1

Student and Faculty Views on Streaming Video
May, page 3

Student support

Advances in Student Advising
August, page 7

Questions Students Need to Ask Before Taking an Online Course
September, page 8

Online MBA Orientation Program: Some Best Practices
— Kam Jugdev, Ph.D. and Maureen Hutchison
November, page 4

Threaded discussion

A Guide to Discussing 'Ill-Structured Problems' Online
February, page 2

Student Facilitation, Self-Assessment Can Improve Threaded Discussions
May page 1

Structuring the Case Method for Asynchronous Online Learning
June, page 1

Student-Led Threaded Discussion: Few Constraints, Plenty of Learning
July, page 6

Comparing Synchronous and Asynchronous Communication
July, page 1

The Role of Electronic Bulletin Boards in F2F Classes
September, page 7

Weblogs

Blogs Help Create Learning Community
August, page 5

Blogs, Threaded Discussions Accentuate Constructivist Teaching
December, page 1

Blogs Move Student Learning Beyond the Classroom: An Interview With Alex Halavais
December, page 4