What's Different About Teaching Online, and How Do I Change So My Students Succeed?

In some ways it is absolutely true that 'good teaching is good teaching'. However, teaching in unique modalities, especially online vs face-to-face, is different. These two modalities require some unique and intentional instruction and faculty must be purposeful with teaching is approached in these different modalities.

This 20-Minute Mentor will address the main differences between F2F and Online Instruction while providing some practical tips for making minor changes to help students succeed.

Upon completion of this program, you'll be able to:

- Understand the main differences between online and face-to-face instruction
- Evaluate basic practices for each modality
- Explore concepts like student engagement, classroom management, and course design through both an online and face-to-face perspective
